VETARZO BRAIN AND NERVE FOOD.

Agents for India:—TREACHER AND CO., LTD. BOMBAY, SIMLA, and POONA.

This remarkable compound, the result of the latest developments and achievements of modern chemistry, pharmacology, and therapeutics, is without equal in all cases of defective nerve power, whether induced by worry, over-work, unhealthy climate, dissipation, excess, youthful imprudence, or other influences incidental to the wear and tear and haste or overstrain of modern life. Sleeplessness, tremblings, palpitation, nervous dyspepsia, low spirits, mental and bodily prostration, muscular and local weakness, general and nervous debility, faulty nutrition, premature decay or deficiency of the vital forces, impaired vitality, harassing dreams, night disturbances, sudden startings, dimness of sight, defective hearing, loss of memory, inability to perform the various duties of life, or to enjoy its pleasures, restlessness that can settle to nothing, irritability of temper, female complaints, hysteria, painful periods, backache, bearing down sensations, nervous headache, wasting disease, night sweats, and all other phases of brain and nerve exhaustion, are successfully combated by this highly scientific preparation. Bracing up the system generally, it gives tone to the exhausted nerves, arrests all weakening wasting discharges, involuntary losses, &c.; restores the failing energies, and imparts new life and vigour to what had so recently seemed worn out, "used up," and valueless.

VETARZO BLOOD MEDICINE.

Never before was there anything like it, nor can its marvellous properties ever be equalled in all cases of poorness, impurity, or other imperfection of the blood from whatever cause arising. No sooner is it imbibed into the system than it permeates and penetrates to the minutest capillaries, overcoming and expelling the virus of disease, wheresoever and in whatsoever form met with; removing all blotches, pimples, scurf, scurvy, scrofulous and glandular swellings, discolorations, roughness and unsightly patches, &c. Its effects are almost magical in the treatment of gout, rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago, pains and swellings of the joints, discharges, secondary symptoms, eczema, lepra, psoriasis, bad legs, bad breasts, abscesses, ulcers, sores, goitre or Derbyshire neck, it improves the general health, and quickly removes long-standing bronchitis, asthma, and hacking, straining, spasmodic cough, too often the precursor of consumption.

CAUTION.—Ask for "VETARZO Brain and Nerve Food," or "VETARZO Blood Medicine," whichever is required, and see that you get them, as unprincipled vendors often try to palm off inferior preparations (usually their own manufacture), for the sake of extra profit. Price in England, 2/9. Every genuine bottle of these medicines bears the British Government Stamp with the words "VETARZO REMEDIES" impressed thereon, in white letters on a red ground, by direction of His Majesty's Hon. Commissioners. Registered Trade Mark "VETARZO." Legal proceedings will be taken against persons pirating

COMMON SENSE IN A NUTSHELL.—A new medical work on the causes and most scientific and effectual means of self-cure ever discovered for nervous exhaustion, depression of spirits, want of zest and energy, &c., with practical observations on marriage and full directions for removing certain disqualifications that destroy the happiness of wedded life. It also treats on urinary derangements, secondary symptoms, stricture, &c., and no sufferer should fail to procure a copy. Post free in plain envelope on receipt of Postal Order Sixpence, from THE VETARZO REMEDIES Co., Gospel Oak, London, or of Agents for above Medicines. Price 10 annas Post Free.

POSTAL NOTICE.—Mails for Ceylon, Straits Settlements, China, Japan and Australia per s.s. "Assaye" will be closed at the General Post Office at 8-15 a.m. on Wednesday the 1st February. Parcel mail for China closes at the New G. P. O. at 7-30 a.m. the same day.

FATAL BURNS.—A Borah lad named Ali Mahomed Hakimji, aged four years, was playing in his room on the second floor of a house in Doctor Street with a box of sulphur matches when he set his clothes on fire. His uncle Abdul Hoosian on hearing his cries ran to his assistane and extinguished the fire but not before Ali Mahomed was severely burnt about his body. Ali Mahomed was treated at Sir J. J. Hospital and taken home where he died.

DISAPPEARANCE OF ORNAMENTS.—Mahashunkar Jathuram, a Purdesee, keeping a milk shop a Girgaum, closed his shop at 2 a.m. on Saturday and went to sleep. He woke up at 6 a.m. when he missed his servant named Baloo alias Gopal whom he had engaged about a month ago. On enquires he discovered that ornaments of the value of Rs. 955 had also disappeared from the shop.

Y. M. C. A.—An interesting lecture entitled "A tour in the North West India" was delivered by Mr. A. H. S. Aston, Chief Presidency magistrate, on Saturday evening at 9-15 o'clock. The lecture was illustrated by magic lantern slides showing several interesting places and spots of which really good photographs had been taken. The audience was large and appreciative and the lecturer had treated the subject quite popularly.

BOMBAY SOCIETY FOR PREVENTION OF CRUELTY TO ANIMALS.—Cruelty cases prosecuted by the Agents at Bombay during the month of December, 1910 :—6 horses, were sent to the Pinjrapole as being unfit for work, at the instance of the Agents of the Bombay Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, with the permission of the Presidency Magistrates and with the consent of the owners; while 18 horses, 97 bullocks were sent to the Bai Sakarbai Dhashaw Petit Hospital for Animals at Parel for curative treatment during the last month. 333 offenders were fined for cruelty to their animals, 14 cartmen were fined for overloading their carts and 46 offenders were warned and discharged by the Magistrate.

A FAIR AT BANDRA.—Throughout the whole of last week, Bandra was en fete on account of the Fair which was held there to commemorate the first anniversary of the late Pir Mowiana Mahomed Sultan Sufisahab who was looked upon as a saint by the Mahomedan community. Permission to hold a Fair this year, was given to Mr. Sheik Qunoo Sheik Isman, the accredited agent of the late Pir and the Moojawar of the place, by Mr. E. G. Turner, M.A., I.C.S., Special Officer and President of the Bandra Municipality. This year's fair was a unique success. There were four sandal processions, first from the Moojawar, second from the butcher community, third from the general body of the followers and admirers of the late Pir, comprising Mahomedans and Hindus, and fourth from the ladies, whose vows had been fulfilled. These processions were largely attended and everything passed off very quiety for which great credit is due to Mr. Turner and Major H. R. Wallis, Chief Officer of the Bandra Municipality. The police arrangements under Inspector J. Corby were also satisfactory.

EXCELSIOR CINEMATOGRAPH.

The Marionettes are again the main attraction at this popular show, the management in response to repeated requests having retained them for another week. Many novelties were introduced into their show last night, the most popular being an exceedingly clever pair of Cake Walkers who walked for the Cake in a most characteristic manner. A pair of Chinese Dancers were another smart turn. The Transformation scene is still a great attraction for the children who, evidently, thoroughly enjoy the beautiful cyloured effects. The pictures are specially attractive this week, and the dramatic film, "The Revenging Picture," is most thrilling and realistic. It is splendidly staged, the actors are of the first rank and as a result the story of an incident in the French Revolution is faithfully depicted on the screen. There are several other excellent pictures and the large programme goes with a swing from start to finish.

ST. JOHN AMBULANCE.

Parsi Brigade's Address.

On Sunday last, in the hall of the Elphinstone High School, Bombay, the members of the Parsi Division of St. John Ambulance Brigade, presented an address to the Chairman of the Committee and Chief Medical Officer, Rao Bahadur Dr. Dinanath B. Naik Dandeker, L. M. & S., F.R.I.P. H (Lond), J. P. congratulating him on the honour recently conferred upon him by Government. Mr. H. G. Clark, Chief Superintendent, Bombay Corps, was in the chair. The Chairman in explaining the object of the meeting, eulogised the services of Rao Bahadur Dr. Dandeker both to St. John Ambulance Association and the Brigade and added that he was an indefatigable, sincere, and zealous worker, in the noble work, taken up by all of us, though of different caste and creed, but all working for the same good aim of relieving the distress and sufferings of humanity. By his sound advice and ever willingness to work for the advancement of this philanthropic Institution they had all become his friends and admirers. The Chairman then called upon Dr. Rattonshaw Dadabhoy Chinoy to read the following address :—

"Dear Sir,—We the undersigned members of the Parsi Division of St. John Ambulance Brigade wish to express our great satisfaction at our Government having been graciously pleased to confer upon you the distinguished title of Rao Bahadur and to offer you our hearty congratulations on your receiving so honourable a token of His Excellency's appreciation of your well-known public spirit and enlightened generosity towards the objects of public utility.

"We all take a considerable degree of pride in the knowledge that we have you as the Chairman of our Committee and the Chief Medical Officer of the Parsi Division and a Vice-President, and Hon. Lecturer, and an Hon. Examiner to the Bombay Presidency Centre of St. John Ambulance Association. Your distinguished services both to the Association and to the Brigade have been most valuable and it gives us great pleasure to recall the days when they received due recognition at the hands of His Imperial Majesty the King-Emperor George V, when Prince of Wales, who had been graciously pleased to accord you his special thanks on Vellum over his own Signature.

"Your efforts have not only been directed towards helping this Association, but your extremely useful help to Government in connection with plague during its commencement in Bombay, has also duly met with their appreciation when you were created one of His Majesty's Justices of the Peace.

"The special mention from time to time, in Government Resolutions, of your special services to the bench of Honorary Presidency Magistrates, proves how useful and valuable your services have been to the public and the Government.

"Your honorary services to the Bombay Sanitary Association in delivering to the masses lectures on the prevention of malaria and other infectious diseases occasionally have been of great use in imparting sanitary education to the general public of this city and more especially to the working classes.

"In short, your public life has been quite exemplary and we hope that the present honour is but a precursor of higher honours in store for you.

"As a small token of the high esteem in which you are held by us, we beg that you will accept our congratulations on the present occasion and we pray that you may long be spared to enjoy your well-earned honour, that health, strength and happiness will always be yours, and that all good fortune may ever attend you."

ALPINE DELIGHTS.

THE migration to the Alps from Great Britain, and of late years, from the United States, becomes every succeeding winter more marked; agents are as busy as bees booking passages for the flight, and the Swiss hotels can hardly build annexes in time to accommodate the flocks of tourists that insist on spending the first weeks of the year where snow and frost hold sway. It is not only these that tempt travellers, it is the skilful manipulation of the Swiss weather conditions by clever hotel proprietors and by games specialists that draw thousands of the youth of both sexes from the more sober sports that obtain in less favoured countries. A writer in the Times relates the various steps by which a Swiss mountain nook emerges from a happy obscurity until it becomes a prosperous and even hilarious health resort, its artfully trimmed ice and snow thronged with crowds on pleasure bent, while every scheme, for enjoyment that can be fitted into a twenty-four hours' day is laboriously thought out by the interested caterers for the visitors searching for health or trying to kill the time that hangs heavy on their hands at home. The history of one such station may apply to all more or less exactly. St. Moritz began its upward career in 1882. It was then a simple enough place to which delicate people made their way to breathe the pure air of its snowy heights, in hopes of a renewal of vigour and life. Being miles from the nearest railway station, hopeless invalids did not attempt the final drive over the Julier pass. Those who were strong enough to reach St. Moritz soon found their health and energies return. Mr. Caspar Badrutt of the Kulm Hotel, he thought him of skating as an outlet for their recovered strength and doubtless, too, as a means of prolonging the stay of visitors to St. Moritz, and he found in an Englishman, Dr. Holland, a strong supporter of his plans. A rink was constructed and before long definite rules and regulations made of the St. Moritz skating institution a model that was promptly copied by other Alpine centres, Davos and many that have since risen to popularity.

Until 1890, the St. Moritzers were content with the unalloyed joy that perfection in skating brought. They have since added the triumphs of prize-taking, until it has come to be said of them that they "can hardly step outside their hotels without winning a prize." Twenty years ago a test was instituted with a badge for those who passed it, and though the badge had to be paid for, it was so highly prized that the price was gladly given. When the great day of judgment came, the whole community was on the watch to see how the competitors acquitted themselves. The rink was vacated by all skaters but the candidates. The judges went seriously to work to award the coveted badge, and woe to the skater who could not get through the simple movements of the test with ease, who "wobbled" or "fudged." In 1903, St. Moritz rose to the dignity of presenting a Challenge Cup for competition; since then the complications of handicaps and combined figure-skating have been added to the candidates' trials. Not long after the introduction of the rink came the tobogan, and those who like to look for a classical origin for everything, pretend that the Romans negociated the difficulties of the Julier pass by tobogganing down its slopes on their shields. When Englishmen congregated on these heights they determined to slide down, too, and soon organised, in true British fashion, a race between ten athletes from Davos and ten from St. Moritz, for a cup called the Grand National. A course, named the Cresta Run was carefully marked out and constructed for this race. The mounts were Swiss tobogganas, not of the modern elaborately designed kind, but the good old sort that was in use for sending parcels over frozen ground, made all of wood, frame, plank and runners, the latter being shod with flat pieces of iron. On such rough and ready steeds the Grand National Cup was first competed for, in a three-quarter of a mile race, to cover which took a minute and a half.

It was hardly likely that this primitive toboggan would long satisfy the British sportsmen who entered the lists. All kinds of improvements were attempted and made, and must have caused the Swiss to smile at the adjustments considered necessary by the strangers before they could steer down the steep inclines. The mountaineers never found any difficulty in these runs, from childhood they spun unerringly in whatever direction they desired, untroubled by doubt end undismayed by unsolved theories of such Alpine motions. But the adult visitors in self-defence first introduced the "American" toboggan, then the "skeleton" on which the racer lies down instead of sitting, and finally a rowing man adopted the sliding seat which has proved a tremendous success. The Cresta Run has been much modified, the banks are steeper and the pace consequently much faster, the course being "rushed" at the rate of 50 miles an hour, not ridden as in former days. Flags and watches timed the race then, now an electric chronograph, registering tenths of a second, does the delicate work. Curling is part of the modern St. Moritz programme. An enterprising Scot, enamoured of his national game, presented Herr Badrutt with a pair of curling stones. These were copied by local masons. Visitors experimented on the frozen lake, and by degrees the outfit grew, the sport became popular, was provided with its own ice-field and club, which was duly affiliated to the Royal Caledonian with playing rights to the medal of that ancient institution. Now cups of many designs and various merits figure in its annual list. The curling season is from December to March, with weekly competitions for prizes. Ladies play the game and a "pro" is engaged to direct the members' efforts. So it is that St. Moritz has gallantly led the way in planning the games that absorb the days of visitors. There are plenty of what may be called bye-amusements to fill, as we said every hour of the twenty-four. It is not unknown for young people who have regained health and stored extra vigour on these snow-clad slopes, to pursue one diversion after another so persistently, we had almost said, so steadily, that not one moment of the day or night is spent in sleep. After the dance that winds up the evening is over, they hasten to have a calming cup of tea in their hotel, take a refreshing bath before flying down to the toboggan ground, there to run a few races, return to breakfast and then skate, ski, curl or toboggan until lunch and through the afternoon, dine, dance, and again begin the day "as fresh as paint," they are rash enough to declare. This serious pursuit of pleasure must contrast sadly with their return to real life and labour in the subdued atmosphere of a British town when the exhilarating weeks of a Swiss holiday are over.

THE SITUATION IN RUSSIA. There is reason to believe that the threatening situation in Russia has been considerably allayed and although it is not always easy to guess at real motives and opinions behind the mask of Russian official reticence, there are signs that the position is regarded with less anxiety than it was a month or so ago. At the time of Tolstoi's death, our readers will remember with demonstrations all over the country principally by the students and also by the active revolutionaries. The Government employed repressive measures, which in many quarters it was feared would but still further inflame the feelings of the people and lead to another terrible "Red Sunday" like that of 1905. Fortunately for the time at least any danger of this has been avoided, and the Government whatever it may actually feel is adopting an optimistic tone. The attitude which they now adopt was reflected at a recent meeting of the Committee of Ministers which discussed the whole question of ebullitions of revolutionary feeling at the universities and other centres of learning was discussed. The opinion of the meeting is reported by a St. Petersburg correspondent in the following terms. It was generally recognised that while the feelings expressed are very widespread indeed, they have appeared practically everywhere in university centres, they are by no means deep, and are practically confined to that class of student who enters the university for the purpose of saving his country by the methods of modern Socialialism. There is no chance in Russia, to day, of another "revolution," for these outbreaks of students, tiresome and objectionable as they are, have no support from the mass of the population. Even the workmen, the prolific soil for Socialist propaganda, expressly refused to join the students in Moscow and elsewhere. As from the 90 per cent. of Russia's population who live more or less directly by agriculture, they are far too busy with the happy results of two excellent harvests and the hopes of yet another to say nothing of the grandiose scheme of agrarian settlement, which is progressing at an accelerated pace. The Government has, therefore, given it out that it is not alarmed at what it regards as student vagaries. The worst that it fears is isolated instances of bomb-throwing and assassination of officials. It does not believe that any organised revolt is in the air and as far such methods of terrorism as may occur it believes that M. Stolypin's Government is strong enough to render them powerless of any serious result. The Committee of Ministers decided to recommend the heads of the educational establishments concerned in the recent outbreaks simply to expel the students who first defied their own professors and then yielded to police force with or without attempting opposition. Students who are so in name only and are known to the police as revolutionary propagandists will be dealt with as revolutionaries and not as students. It is believed that there was nothing more in the recent outbreaks of feeling than an attempt by means of simultaneous demonstrations throughout the country to make an appearance of force which might influence the Government. This appears to have failed and for the time being at least the students seem to be setting down under their failure. How long his period of tranquillity may last, it is impossible to say, but it is something to know that the situation is quieter and that the authorities do not anticipate any serious revolutionary outbreak.

IMPERIAL MARITIME LEAGUE. We have pleasure in drawing attention to the special appeal, which is being issued from London on behalf of the junior branch of the Imperial Maritime League, by its honorary secretary, Mrs. Fremen Lord. The Imperial Maritime League is an organisation, which with similar objects to those of the Navy League, should specially appeal for support to residents in India and the oversea dominions. The object of the junior branch of the League, as it is stated in the annual report, is "to arouse the interest of all young people in the Empire and in the Navy, by which the Empire is preserved." In the short time at its disposal it has made admirable progress in this direction, principally within the United Kingdom, and this appears to be a special effort to enlist the sympathies of young people—all must be under the age of 20—in the British States and dependencies abroad. The junior branch was formed on New Year's Day, 1909, and at the end of the first year it numbered 1,500 members. At the end of last year it included in its ranks 2,700 boys and girls in about equal proportions. Its methods include the teaching of patriotic or Imperial history by sending to each member monthly leaflets describing the life of some great sailor, soldier or civilian and by lectures in schools on such subjects as "the growth of the British Empire," "the growth of the Navy," and "Life in the British Navy." The leaflets are written for the most parts by well-known writers, and as an example a copy is forwarded with this appeal of an appreciation of Nelson by Admiral Mahan of the United States Navy. It also seeks to encourage the teaching of rifle-shooting to boys, and the teaching of first aid to girls. This is an excellent programme by means of which the League should be able to perform much service to the Empire by instilling into its youth ideals of patriotism and national service. The League points out, however, that with every accretion of membership its expenses will grow, and its appeal is not only for support from the young people but also for financial support from such sympathisers who are precluded from affording more active assistance. We hope their appeal will be productive of results. There are symptoms that the need for a more powerful Navy in view of the rapid building programmes of other Powers, is being generally recognised by the moderate members of all parties except the Socialists. Still the little-Navy party at Home is still large and through some of its adherents influential and, if as Reuter forecasted the other day, the present Government introduce an increased building programme a strenuous opposition will be organised against it. There is still much work, therefore, for propogandist societies such as this to do and, at a time when the signs are more hopeful, there should be an incentive to greater activity in order to clinch their arguments once and for all. It would be a grievous error for the Empire were a more favourable outlook to be allowed to lull the advocates of the Navy into a sense of false security.

DURING His Highness the Crown Prince of Germany's visit to the Allahabad Exhibition, he expressed a wish to the Secretary, Mr. G. Ramsay-Murray, to see Messrs. Marshall Sons and Co.'s engines exhibited in the Engineering Court, in motion. This was about a little after 10 a.m. and the current for driving the machinery in the Engineering Court is not usually available until 11 a.m., but Mr. Murray had sent down to the Power House for the current to be turned on, if possible, and just at the time that Sir John Hewett brought the Prince to Marshall and Sons' Stand, the machinery commenced to work. Sir John Hewett introduced His Highness to the General Manager, Mr. John Harper, and the Prince took a very keen interest in several of the engines, and appeared to understand a great deal about mechanics, as he was quite "au fait" with the technicalities, and asked many pertinent engineering questions. His Highness spent about twenty minutes on this Stand, and was exceedingly affable and intelligently interested in all that he saw. Mr. Harper's opinion was that the Prince is evidently a good engineer as well as a good sportsman.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS.

RUSSIA AND THE TRIPLE ENTENTE.

Germany and Russia.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, JAN. 14.

SPECIAL interest attaches to the debate on foreign affairs, which began on Thursday, at the Chamber of Deputies, owing to all the speculation to which the Potsdam interview has given rise. Questions and interpellations which were to have been made in the House towards the close of last year were by common consent postponed until the day when the Budget of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs should come on for discussion, as it is invariably prefaced with a general debate. Since then events have occurred which have invested the subject with additional importance, so that this debate has been looked forward to with even more than ordinary interest. The question which has particularly preoccupied public opinion of late has naturally been that of a possible rapprochement between Russia and Germany. What would such a rapprochement imply if it did come off, and what would be its influence on the Triple Entente? Extremely reassuring evidence of its unswerving loyalty to the Triple Entente, to the alliance with France, and to the friendship with England was given by the Russian Government to France. M. Iswolsky's address when he presented his credentials to the President of the Republic was more than ordinarily emphatic, and was received with marked satisfaction. Now it is announced that M. Sasonoff has arranged for a visit to Paris in the spring, another proof of friendship. The despatch from your Special Correspondent at St. Petersburg, published to-day in your columns, and stating that the Triple Entente is seriously threatened, if not worse, has so far not tended to weaken this favourable impression. The only explanation which can be found for this warning is that, although his Government is as staunch as ever to the Triple Entente, the Tsar may be rather nervously inclined to come to certain terms with Germany, simply as a measure of precaution, and through his well-known love of peace. So this warning, in the opinion of his Government, would have the salutary effect of revealing the danger to the friendly Powers and also of evoking a strong expression of opinion in his own dominions.

DISCUSSION OPENED.

When the Chamber met at a later hour than usual, M. Henri Brisson, who had been re-elected President, took possession of the chair, and delivered a graceful address. Then, after some preliminary business, the debate on the foreign situation began with a speech from M. Paul Deschanel, Chairman of the Budget Committee on Foreign Affairs, who mentioned first the necessity of increasing the allowances for certain diplomatic posts, and the steps to be taken to encourage young men of merit, but without pecuniary resources, to enter the diplomatic profession. He then referred in the following words to the present situation: "The first duty of our diplomacy is to strengthen our alliances and ententes, and to back up a co-ordinate and pacific policy with a strong army and navy, so as to ensure for France in the future the role which fifteen centuries of labour, bravery, and glory entitle her in Europe." Several other speakers followed, and treated questions concerning French interests in the East and in Turkey. M. Lucien Hubert was the first to rise then, and treat the palpitating question of the day. He went into the history of the Potsdam meeting, and said: "It is not astonishing that Germany should seek a rapprochement with Russia, especially after the Russo-Japanese entente, which restored to Russia all her liberty of action in Europe. The question might have been raised in Germany as to whether the Triple Entente was not going to become aggressive. During the summer the Ministers of Germany, Austria, and Italy met, and affirmed their agreement. M. Iswolsky, in his turn, visited the Ministers of the Triple Entente, and during the great manœuvres the forthcoming meeting between the Tsar and the Kaiser at Potsdam was announced. The report was spread that M. Iswolsky was opposed to it. He retires, and the interview takes place in October. The meeting draws forth the comments of the Press of Europe, and these comments become more general after the speech of the German Chancellor, especially in Germany. Now, after the most recent declaration, it is simply said that the interview at Potsdam was merely on Asiatic questions. It now devolves upon the Minister for Foreign Affairs to add, if necessary, another act to this piece." The speaker then referred to the change that came over the Triple Alliance since the accession to power of Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg and Herr von Kiderlen-Wachter. He said:—"The Triple Entente must pay great attention to this situation. France must be told of everything that was going on in Europe, must observe rigorous discipline, and must be very strong on land and sea. She must be strong in the very interests of peace." When the applause which greeted these remarks had died away, M. Denys Cochin, a Conservative member who makes a speciality of foreign politics, entered the rostrum and said that he had been struck by the jubilant tone of the German Press. It was certain that the death of King Edward had been a firm friend of France and peace, had been a great misfortune to all the French. (Universal assent.) As for the rapprochement between Russia and Germany, the observations of the German Press were really extravagant. Had 1910 really been unfortunate for France? Had France played her due part in the events that had occurred? "For action one must be strong and rich." France was strong in the Mediterranean, where she had a splendid fleet—indeed, she was at least as strong there as Austria and Italy combined. Was she wealthy? Why, all Europe applied to her for loans. Was it true, on the other hand, that the ideas represented by France were opposed to those of the whole of Europe? On the contrary, liberal ideas seemed to be spreading over the whole world, as there were Parliaments everywhere. So France was not impoverished, weakened, or looked down on. What had she done? In Crete the Protecting Powers had not kept their word to the people. Consider, too, the conditions under which Servia, which had prepared for war when Bosnia and Herzegovina were annexed, had been compelled to disarm. Yet in these matters France had been by the side of her ally. Servia had submitted, though Austria should at least have been induced to conclude with her, the treaty of commerce that she had promised.

M. PICHON'S SPEECH.

There had been considerable speculation as to whether M. Pichon would speak, it having been generally assumed that he would defer his reply until Monday. But as soon as M. Denys Cochin had concluded, the Minister for Foreign Affairs was at the tribune. M. Pichon who spoke very clearly, began by saying: "Nothing has occurred that is of a nature to modify in any degree the relations entertained by France with the Powers to which she is bound by alliance or by friendship." This reassuring preface was received with general cheers, and the Ministers continued: "The chief question settled during 1910 is that of our position in Morocco. Three agreements have been concluded with the Sultan, Muley Hafid. The execution of these agreements is going on loyally on both sides. At the same time we have pursued our policy of penetration, pacification, and progress. Shawia has never been quieter than since it has been submitted to our military administration. On the Algerian frontier a regular regime has been organised and a programme of public works drawn up. Lastly, the liquidation of the Maghzen's debts will facilitate the realisation of reforms which are seen to be necessary in the interior of the Empire. Mining regulations give equal chances to subjects of all the Powers. We have developed relief works and education. Our consulates have been developed. Our policy, in collaboration with the Maghzen's, is the best guarantee against fanaticism and expeditions that we do not want. We do not forget that we are connected with Spain by engagements the value of which has been shown. We have, in agreement with England, facilitated an entente between the Moroccan Government and the Madrid Cabinet. The Spanish Government has kindly acknowledged our friendly support, on which it can always rely. France and Spain exercise the right conferred on them by an international mandate for the suppression of contraband of arms in Moroccan waters. There has never been an Agadir incident. This the German Government has loyally admitted. France has not exceeded her rights, nor will she in the future. She will act here strictly in accord with the texts and the spirit of the agreement. (Cheers.) She has never had an aggressive policy in Morocco, and all nations have profited from what she has done. The speeches in the Italian Chamber and the Queen's Parliament prove that France's relations with Italy and Turkey have not ceased to be friendly. No cloud has shrouded this traditional friendship with Italy. The entente with that Power in the affairs of Crete and in the great economic enterprises in the Balkans proves this. France's sympathy for Turkey has not been in the least weakened by the affair of the last loan. She is ready to favour Turkey's prosperity, which her engineers and capital are always assisting. The Minister of Finance, the Grand Vizier, and the leader of the majority in Parliament, have all noted that the question of the loan has not created the slightest coolness. The French Government will continue to settle all the other questions in the same spirit of friendliness, justice, and equity. A number of French engineers have been sent to Turkey, and many Turkish officials have come to France. Thus our economic relations are being more and more developed. We can only congratulate ourselves on the present situation in Greece, with which we are connected by so many memories. It was the Cretan demonstrations which compelled the Protecting Powers to make necessary representations to the Cretans. M. Pichon now turned to England, and what he said was impressive. "The entente with England has never been closer and more complete than it is to-day. This union, which grows more and more cordial between the two Powers, is one of the greatest benefits of the policy of these last six years. The British people only employ this entente to secure the prevalence of pacific views. King George is following the policy of his illustrious father, whose memory France piously retains."

RELATIONS WITH RUSSIA.

Next came France's relations with Russia, of particular interest at this date: It would be a legend to believe that any event has occurred of a nature to change the trend and the object of our alliance with Russia. It has been affirmed that something has happened which might affect the character of the European alliances. Yet Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, speaking in the Reichstag about the Potsdam interview, took care to put his hearers on their guard against constructions that might alter their nature. The maintenance of the status quo in the East is the object of our traditional policy. The agreement between Russia and Germany on Persian affairs cannot cause us any uneasiness, as it removes a source of trouble. The principles with which Russia and Germany have been inspired are those which inspired the Franco-German agreement in 1909. At this point M. Jaures asked: "Did Russia inform you of her intention to grant the prolongation of the Bagdad Railway to Germany?" M. Pichon: The Potsdam pourparlers were no novelty for us. From the outset it was agreed that fidelity to the alliances was the ground on which each party should stand. People have asked whether France would not be isolated. Facts prove the contrary. I have never lost a chance of adding to our entente, and I have kept a watchful eye on every corner of the world. Diplomacy must rest on the force of opinion and on the strength of our army. In foreign politics you cannot govern against public opinion. Nations make their voices heard in the councils of Governments. War cannot now be waged without the assent of peoples, and this is not the least guarantee of peace. There is another. "It is our military strength. We have alliances and friendships because we are strong. If we want a foreign policy worthy of France we must have a powerful army and navy; we must be in a position to fulfil great duties—duties which we may in the end be called upon to fulfil. Loud and sustained applause greeted the conclusion of this powerful speech, which shows how unfounded are the fears as to the solidity of the Triple Entente. The House rose after this, at half-past seven o'clock, to continue the debate to-morrow.

THE POSTDAM INTERVIEW.

How do Great Britain and France stand towards Germany and Russia since the Potsdam interview between the Kaiser and the Tsar? That is a question which arouses as lively an interest in St. Petersburg, as in Paris and London. The Russian and German Ministers had reserved to themselves the sole right of answering it and revealing to the world the scope of their agreement, but in the meantime the publication in a London evening paper of the alleged contents of Russia's proposal has thrown the topic, like a bone of contention, into the political arena. Who divulged a secret which was known only to three or four persons in the Russian capital? The "Novoye Vremya," in a leader, hints that the indiscretion is traceable to the highest diplomatic representative of Germany in St. Petersburg. The Nationalist organ maintains that Berlin alone is profiting by the disclosure, which it uses as a wedge to split the Triple Entente. Moreover, the entire German Press seized on the alleged text of the Russian proposal and falsely declared that they had taken it from the London "Times" and employed it as a seed of discord, which they proceeded to sow among the Powers of the Triple Entente. To-morrow M. Pichon is expected to deliver a statement setting forth France's commanding position in the world of politics, affirming the vitality of the alliance, and reiterating Russia's undying friendship for the French people. All that is expected and discounted. Those are not the questions that need answering. Moreover, while sympath

It is pointed out that the Reciprocity Agreement with Canada establishes free-trade in the leading food products, and reduces the rates on secondary products and a number of manufactures. The general opinion is that President Taft thinks that the Agreement will rehabilitate his political status as regards popularity and restore confidence in his sincerity as a tariff revisionist, though bitter opposition is to be expected from Senators and Deputies representing the interests affected. It is probable that the Agreement will pass by means of a coalition of the Democrats and Republican Insurgents.

England Outplay France.

LONDON, JAN. 28.

In glorious weather and before a large crowd, England met France to-day, at Twickenham. England started brilliantly, but encountered a stubborn defence until the three-quarters initiated a beautiful passing movement, and Lambert, kicking across, enabled Pillman to score behind the posts, the same player converting. England made repeated attacks, but the French tackling was splendid. Lambert eventually scored a second try for England.

The half-time score was:

England ..... 8 points.
France ..... nil.

On the resumption of play, England put themselves 21 points ahead in ten minutes, their play being immensely superior to that of the Frenchmen, in spite of desperate tackling by the latter. The English three-quarters played a grand game, especially Lambert, whose place kicking was also fine. Stoop at half-back was excellent. The French at full-back retired early in the second half. The result was:

England ..... 37 points
France 0

INDIAN MINING INDUSTRIES.

Future of the Coal Fields.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

CALCUTTA, JAN. 28.

The annual dinner of the Indian Mining Institute was held last night, Mr. R. P. Ashton presiding. The principal guest was the Lieutenant-Governor. The loyal toasts were proposed by the Chairman, after which Major F. C. Hughes, proposed the Mineral Industry of India. He referred to the signs of coming prosperity, and said Indian coal should be able to hold its own against all comers in Eastern market from Singapore to Aden, if not further afield. He spoke hopefully of the iron, steel, copper and oil industries, and urged a combination of strong finance and expert knowledge.

He said: "With regard to silver and gold, metals with which I am intimately associated in my profession, there appears little chance of silver ever being largely produced in this country, though silver and lead ores of some richness are known to exist in Burma and other localities. Gold mining is, however, a well-established industry in Mysore. The difficulty in mining problems, which have been encountered in Mysore, reminds us that the deep mining of the future will necessitate the most up-to-date methods being introduced into the Bengal coal fields, and I think that our Institute can accomplish a useful work by educating those connected with the industry in the improvement of methods of prevention of waste and the safety and health of the miner. Practically the whole of the gold produced by the Indian mines amounting to over £2,000,000 is now exported direct to London, to be refined and minted, but I think the day is not far distant when India will refine her gold in local refineries, and have it minted in her own mint."

BOMBAY UNIVERSITY.

Examination Halls.

The annual meeting of the Senate of the Bombay University was held in the Sir Cowasji Jehangir Hall, of the University on Saturday, Sir N. G. Chandavarkar, the Vice-Chancellor, presiding.

On the motion of Sir Bhalchandra Krishna, seconded by Mr. F. B. Tyabji, the following three gentlemen were elected members of the Board of Accounts: Messrs K. Subramani Aiyar, Chunilal D. Saraiya and J. A. Dalal.

On the motion of Mr. Rustom K. R. Cama, as recommended by the Syndicate, the following new Fellows were assigned to the different Faculties: Mr. Adarji Merzboji Masani, Arts; Mr. W. S. Millard, Arts; Mr. R. D. Prior, Arts; Lieutenant-Colonel J. S. Smith, Medicine; Rao Bahadur G. N. Nadkarni, Law; Prof. S. R. Bhandarkar, Arts; Mr. R D. Sethna, Law; the Rev. Dr. D. Mackichan, (Distinction in Science) Arts and Engineering; Dr. N. F. Surveyor, (M. A. with Honours), Arts and Medicine; Prof. Farduji M. Dastur, Arts; Principal A.C.L. Wilkinson, Arts; Prof. V. K. Rajvade, Arts; Mr. M. R. Jaykar, Arts and Law; and Khan Baha; dur K. N. Contractor, Arts.

SECTIONAL ENDOWMENTS.

The Senate then considered an offer of Rs. 10,000 in 4 1-2 per cent. Port Trust or Municipal bonds from the Executors of the will of the late Mr. Gangadas Rangildas for the foundation of a Scholarship in the deceased's name to be awarded to the candidate who may pass the B. A. Examination with the highest number of marks from among the Hindu Candidates.

The Hon'ble Mr. C. H. Setalvad moved that the offer be accepted.

Mr. R. R. Pranjpe was against the motion. He said that formerly scholarships like these might have been useful to encourage Hindu students who were backward then. But now higher education had been put on a sound basis and there was no necessity for such sectional scholarships. Besides this endowment was only a prize donation which did not ask students to further prosecute their studies in the event of their getting it.

Mr. K. Natrajan said he would vote against the motion.

Shamsululma J. J. Modi thought the time had come when the University should charge 25 per cent. instead of 5 per cent. for their labours in this connection.

Mr. K. S. Aiyar moved an amendment that the matter be referred back to the Syndicate for reconsideration.

Mr. Anderson seconded the amendment.

Sir N. G. Chandavarkar thought the time had come when they must make up their minds whether they should accept sectional endowments. He agreed with the principle that the University should not encourage endowments like these.

The Hon'ble Mr. Setalvad said this donation could not be called sectional as the Hindus were a vast community. Only last year they had accepted a donation of this kind and he did not know on what principle they could refuse the present one.

Mr. D. G. Padhye deprecated a departure in an abrupt manner from principles which had long been accepted by the University. He thought if they did not allow sectional endowments they would get none at all.

The amendment being put to the vote was lost; and Mr. Setalvad's original motion accepting the offer was carried.

The Hon'ble Mr. Setalvad next moved that the offer of Rs. 25,000 in 3 1-2 per cent. Government Promissory Notes from Messrs. Amritlal Bhimji and Manilal Bhimji for the foundation of two Scholarships in the name of the late Rao Bahadur Bhimji Morarji be accepted with the best thanks of the Senate, and that the scholarships be awarded every third year, or whenever vacant, by the Syndicate to a Dasa Shrimali Bania Candidate.

Mr. Setalvad said this scholarship was not for Hindus generally but was restricted to Shrimali Bania candidates. He admitted it was sectional, but they had to remember that the community for whom it was intended was backward in education and they must encourage backward communities like these. Every case must be judged on its own merits. The Senate had decided against accepting sectional endowments, but a Special Committee which had been appointed some years ago to consider the question had pointed out that under special circumstances they might accept sectional donations.

Dr. R. G. Bhandarkar was against the motion, which was defeated.

EXAMINATION HALLS.

The Hon'ble Mr. W. H. Sharp moved as recommended by the Syndicate, that the proposals made by Government in paragraph 8 of their letter No. 1829, Education Department, dated 6th October, 1910, be accepted and that Government be requested to intimate to Sir Cowasji Jehangir that the want of a suitable building-site compels the University to decline with thanks his munificent offer of Rs. 3,25,000. Further that Government be informed that the Senate will contribute towards the cost of the erection of the proposed Examination Halls the sum of Rs. 50,000 out of the grant made by the Government of India to the University.

Mr. Sharp, in moving the proposition, gave a history of the whole question. He related the circumstances under which Sir Cowasji Jehangir's offer had come to be rejected by Government. He said Government proposed the erection of Examination Halls on the present recreation grounds of the Elphinstone College on which the Science Institute was also to be built. The building of these halls on that site would make no difference to the College, since under any circumstances it was to be built upon. And the University site would be saved by the proposal made by Government. It was obvious that the commonsense course was to build upon the recreation grounds to save the University Gardens. A member had suggested that the halls might be built in the University Gardens, but in a manner not completely shutting up the Eastern view of the existing University buildings. But they had to take into consideration the law under which they held the Gardens. Government had lent a part of the grounds to the University, but it was still Government's. And the rest of the plot was leased by Government to the University on the condition that no building would be built on it without their written consent. In this case the consent had been refused and so they could not build upon the site. Three questions arose in connection with the whole matter. The first was Sir Cowasji's offer; and they could only reject it. The second question was whether the University accepted the offer made by Government to build the Examination Halls upon the play-ground of the Elphinstone College. He hoped the Senate would accept the Government's offer. The third question related to accommodation. Mr. Sharp gave the number of candidates that could be accommodated in the different public halls in the city. He said accommodation could be found in these halls together with the new halls for as many candidates as they were likely to have in the future. As to the University's contribution to the cost of building the halls, it was at first thought they might contribute one lakh of rupees. But the Syndicate decided that as they were not going to have a hall of their own, they should contribute only half that amount. One important point he would ask them to remember and it was that under Government's offer the University would have to contribute nothing towards the cost of maintaining the hall.

Rao Bahadur Nadkarni seconded the motion.

Mr. D. G. Padhye moved an amendment that "the Syndicate be requested to ascertain from Government whether they would place entirely at the disposal of the University some portion of the proposed Science Institute buildings, and if so how much area, and also to ascertain from Sir Cowasji Jehangir, whether he will please modify the conditions of his munificent offer of Rs. 3,25,000, so as to enable the Syndicate to get the Examination Halls built in the University Gardens, but in a manner not completely shutting up the Eastern view of the existing University buildings, and require no more contribution to the cost than the sum remaining in the hands of the University out of the grant made by the Government of India."

The amendment fell through for want of a seconder.

Mr. K. Natrajan moved an amendment that the matter be referred back to the Syndicate for revision. He said that having once accepted Sir Cowasji's offer they could not now say they rejected it. They should say that Government having refused their consent the University could not accept the offer.

The Rev. Dr. Mackichan said it was perfectly open to Government to refuse permission to the halls being built on the Gardens. But he had never anticipated that Government would put their power in force in face of the almost unanimous decision of the Senate. He protested against the halls being erected on the Elphinstone College grounds on which it was proposed to build also the Science Institute. He spoke in the interests of the new Institute. Why should they place the beginnings of a great movement on a limited site? As it was, the site would prove too small for a Science Institute. Were they, as interested in the future of science teaching in the Presidency, to encourage Government in this make-shift which would seriously prejudice the future of the Science Institute? Anyone who had visited the Continent and seen its great Science Institute would stand amazed at the ideas put forward in Bombay, in connection with science teaching. The new Institute was going to be the nucleus of a great movement, and to place it in a position where there would be no scope for its future expansion was to defer the hope of developing the teaching of science in this Presidency. Were they prepared to take the responsibility of becoming a party to a decision which would limit and restrict the future development of science teaching in Bombay? He would vote in favour of the admendment.

Sir Bhalchandra Krishna agreed with Dr. Mackichan that the nucleus of a great movement like the Science Institute should not be put in a cramped place.

Sir N. G. Chandavarkar said there was a fact of a legal difficulty in connection with the matter. The fact was that Sir Cowasji Jehangir had made an offer and the University had accepted it, and thus there was a kind of contract, and could they now reject the offer? This was the legal aspect of the question.

Mr. Natrajan's amendment to refer the matter to the Syndicate for revision was then put to the vote and carried.

THE EXHIBITION IN INDIA.

An Inexplicable Bungle.

UNDERTAKING SPOILED BY LACK OF ADVERTISING.

A good many people are possibly aware that there is at present some sort of an exhibition in Allahabad; very few, at any rate in this part of the world, that it is one which, in magnitude, comprehensiveness, and interest fits it to rank with the great exhibitions which from time to time has been held in America and Europe, and surpasses anything which has ever preceded it in India. Such, at any rate, is the opinion passed upon it by an American tourist, Mr. John D. Reavis, at present a Los Angeles land-owner, but formerly a newspapers owner in California. Yet the exhibition is languishing for lack of support, and appears to attract no one but the surrounding natives and Europeans residing in its immediate vicinity.

Mr. Reavis was surprised to find in travelling, through the country, that hardly any information was obtainable anywhere as to the exhibition, and American and other tourists knew nothing about it. There was hardly anything about it in the newspapers or in the hotels or in tourist centres like Colombo, Bombay, and Calcutta, and even Cooks were very meagerly supplied with pamphlets and other descriptive literature with reference to the exhibition. Mr. Cleavis contrasted the puny attempts at advertising with the advertising appropriation fund of 750,000 dollars for the St. Louis Exposition, and that of the World's Fair in 1903, which ran into millions. The advertising agent of the Alaska-Ukan Exhibition in Seattle received 20,000 dollars (gold) and had under him twenty-five stenographers and assistants, a complete art department for the manufacture of blocks, and a printing department for the turning out of pamphlets, newspaper "write ups" pictorial posters, etc. In Allahabad, there appeared to be nothing of this kind at all but the promoters seemed to be under the impression that they could run an exhibition of the magnitude of this pratically without any advertising. Everybody knew that this could not be done in this age of advertising when people were accustomed to see everything that was any good boomed by means of advertisements and the judicious use of the columns of the best newspapers in which they were inserted and which were thus thrown open to them.

The exhibition, he added, covered an area of 100 acres. It contained a tremendous quantity and variety of exhibits of unrivalled interest. The exhibition could not possibly be "done" in less than five days and during that time one could learn more about the textiles and other manufactures, and the arts and crafts of India than by two months' touring. The prices asked for the exhibits were very reasonable and gave one an idea of the prices at which the articles were obtainable in India if one went to the fountain source instead of having to buy them through the wily middlemen who hawked them in the tourist centres. He was convinced that if the exhibition had been properly made known it would have attracted large numbers of representatives of business from Europe and America and certainly all the American and other tourists now in this part of the world. Mr. Reavis thinks it is not too late yet to do something to save the exhibition. He has, of course, nothing personally to gain in the matter, having now finished his tour in India, and being on his way to Egypt and Europe, and he only speaks out of a sense of regret that an exhibition possessing such great attractions and in which so much labour and expenditure have been involved, should be so little visited and be practically a failure.—"Times of Ceylon."

E. the Governor for the information of the Government, and a reply from Government has been received by the Council to the following effect:—(a) The existing No. of foreign liquor 'on' licenses will be reduced by six, further reductions being made by the Collector if opportunities occur before 31st March next; (b) Nine country liquor shops (3 in the E. Ward, 2 in the C Ward, and 1 in each of the B., D., F., and G. Wards repectively) will be closed; (c) First class licenses which fall in next year will be renewed as second class licenses, thus restricting their closing time from 11-30 p.m. to 9-30 p.m; (d) The opening hour of all liquorshops will be changed from 6-30 a.m. to 9-30 a.m.

With regard to point 4, Government approve the recommendation made by the Excise Commissioner that "both for the Mohurrum and the Holi, the days and the hours for closing should be left to the discretion of the district authorities to be exercised by them when necessary for the sake of the public peace or the prevention of drunkenness."

Government have already issued on this subject Press Note, No 11359 dated 13th December, 1910.

As regards the restriction of the sale of liquor at hotels to bona fide residents only, Government have the subject under consideration, but are not disposed to adopt the suggestion made in the second portion of the same clause.

With reference to point 7, Government inform the Council that the sale of liquor to children under 14 years is prohibited under all retail licenses.

BOMBAY HIGH COURT.

SAVARKAR'S TRIAL.

THE trial of Vinayak Damodar Savarkar on the charges of abetment of the murder of Mr. A. M. T. Jackson, lately Collector of Nasik and of conspiring with others to murder Mr. Jackson, was proceeded with on Saturday, at the Bombay High Court, before the Special Tribunal, consisting of the Hon'ble Sir Basil Scott, Chief Justice, the Hon'ble Sir Narayan G. Chandavarkar and the Hon'ble Mr. J. J. Heaton.

Mr. E. J. Park, Detective Inspector, New Scotland yard, examined by the Hon'ble Advocate-General said that in the search of the trunk of Savarkar he found several extracts of English papers referring to the murder of Sir W. Curzon-Wyllie, printed report of "Khalsa" and other papers. After the search he handed the accused to the Bow Street authorities. He remembered the murder of Sir W. Curzon-Wyllie. He was present at the trial when he saw a Browning pistol with which the murder was committed. Vinayak Savarkar was studying at the Bar, while he was under his observation.

Mr. J. A. Guider, C. I. E., Deputy Inspector General of Police, C. I. D., was recalled. Witness said that in consequence of certain information received, he recovered the original telegram from the Check Office, Calcutta. That telegram was sent by Deshpande to Anant Kanare in the name of Anant's brother.

This closed the case for the prosecution.

The accused, on being asked, said that he had nothing to explain.

The learned Advocate-General then addressed the Court on the evidence. He said that Ganesh Savarkar, Vinayak Savarkar and Bhatt and others were members of a secret society at Nasik. The main object of the society was the overthrow of the British rule in India by violent means. In 1906 Vinayak Savarkar went to England to study for the Bar, but the two brothers and Bhatt continued to work on the same lines and Vinayak at the end of 1909 sent a parcel of pistols to India through Chaturbhuj. That parcel or pistols was sent with a letter and they came into the hands of Bhatt and Patankar. Patankar gave some of the pistols to his friend Karve, who was also a member of another secret society, whose object was to get rid of officials by means of bombs and fire-arms. Subsequently Karve and his group got in touch with Anant Kanare and through Anant they succeeded in committing the murder of Mr. Jackson. He would divide the time in two parts; the first down to the time the pistols were first handed over to Patankar, and the second down to the time of the murder of Mr. Jackson. Now in reference to the first part there was the evidence of Gosavi, Chaturbhuj, Koregaonkar, Chanjari Rao and Patankar and they fully corroborated the details he had set out in his opening address. Their evidence was corroborated in material particulars and the accused had not even cross-examined them. The learned counsel then expounded the object of Abhinav Bharat and traced the connection of Kashikar to that Society. The learned Advocate-General then referred to the meeting, speeches delivered by the accused before his leaving for England, four at Nasik and one at Poona and the publication by him of the life of Mazzini in Marathi, two thousand copies of which were sent out by him and distributed in India. Then there were the copies of a bomb manual sent out by the accused to India, copies of which were found with Ganesh at the time of the search of his house by the Police and from the person of Chanjgiri Rao. It was clear from the evidence of Chaturbhuj that those bomb manuals were dispatched by the accused to India. Then there were the copies of "Oh Martyrs" sent out by the accused and a copy of which was found in the search of the house of Kashikar. Then there was the Caxton Hall meeting and subsequent meetings at which the accused had taken a leading part. All that showed that the story told by the witness was true in material particulars. That evidence clearly showed that the accused had sent out to India twenty-one pistols with the object of killing officials and it was with one of the pistols that Mr. Jackson was murdered. The learned counsel then traced the connection of other personages with the accused in the conspiracy to murder Mr. Jackson. The evidence established beyond a doubt that the murder was committed by Anant Kanare, and when he was arrested some arsenic and a revolver was found in his pocket. It was also established that Karve and Deshpande, at the time of the murder, were sitting in twelve anna seats in the theatre and that soon after the murder Deshpande followed Karve to his house, where they had some conversation. It was also established that on Dattu's arrest one ten rupee note was found from his person. Dattu's arrest led to the arrests of Ankushkar and Ganu Vaidya with the result a large Browning pistol was recovered from the latter. The learned Advocate-General in conclusion, said that all those circumstances showed that the facts set out in his opening address had been proved and the accused was guilty of both the charges.

Their Lordships reserved judgment till Monday next.

BOMBAY COTTON MILLS.

A Heavy Claim.

On the Original Side of the Bombay High Court, on Saturday, the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Dinshaw Davar heard the suit brought by Mr. Ahmedbhoy Habibbhoy against the Bombay Cotton Mills, Limited, to recover Rs. 1,02,193, with interest and costs.

Mr. J. D. Inverarity and Mr. G. R. Lowndes, instructed by Messrs. Thakurdas and Company, appeared for the plaintiff; Mr. E. B. Raikes and Mr. B. J. Desai, instructed by Messrs. Payne and Company, were for the defendants.

The plaintiff stated that he had a current account in the defendant company and that he had advanced various sums to them at seven per cent. interest. Most of them were paid by post-dated cheques. Two loans of Rs. 50,000 each of 5th May and 3rd June, 1909, respectively had remained unpaid. He, therefore, thought to recover them with interest and costs.

The Company, in their written statement, said that they had not received any of the loans alleged in the plaint except Rs. 10,000 and Rs. 15,000 and they denied liability. They alleged that Dwarkadass Dharamsey was an intimate friend of the plaintiff and these loans were made to oblige him. The receipts passed by the Company were illusory and without consideration. They said that the Company had made payments in all aggregating to Rs. 40,000 on various other loans to the plaintiff and submitted that those payments were void as they were voluntary payments at a time when the Company was in insolvent circumstances. They, accordingly, counterclaimed that amount with interest and costs.

Without prejudice to the above contentions, they submitted that if a decree is passed, the payment of the same must be made in accordance with the terms of the scheme sanctioned by the Court on 13th April 1910.

The plaintiff, in his written statement to the counter-claim, denied that the payments were voluntary and as such void. He contended that assuming the payments were voluntary, the Company was not now in liquidation and therefore not entitled to recover that amount. He accordingly submitted that the counter-claim should be dismissed with costs.

Issues having been raised, Mr. Lowndes opened his case. Counsel asked if his learned friend admitted the signatures on the receipts.

Mr. Desai said that the then agents of the Company would not give proper instructions to his clients who were not in a position to admit anything.

Mr. Justice Davar asked if the present directors had considered their position in fighting this suit under these circumstances.

Mr. Desai said that their position was very delicate. The monies were paid to Dwarkadass in the first instance. Dwarkadass gave the Company's receipts and debited the monies to the Tricumdass Mills in the books of the Company. If these transactions were genuine, then under the circumstances the Tricumdass Mills would be liable to account the same to his clients, but the liquidator of the Tricumdass Mills said that they had received no consideration. On the facts, however, he hoped to prove that all the payments were made in the hands of Dwarkadass and that they never came in the Company's office.

Mr. Lowndes again asked if the other side wanted him to prove the signatures.

Mr. Desai said that he could not admit the receipts.

Mr. Tricumdass Dwarkadass was thereupon called by Mr. Lowndes to prove the signatures.

Mr. Desai then said that if his Lordship thought that they were wasting time he was not willing to press that matter, but he remarked that he relied in respect of several items of payments on Sections 109 and 197 of the Company's Act and on Section 63 of the Contract Act.

Mr. Inverarity, who happened to be in Court at that time, said that the simplest answer to these was that these sections did not apply to this suit.

Mr. Desai said that he relied on a case reported in 1893 in 3 Chancery, pp. 546.

Just then Mr. Raikes came in Court and after a brief consultation with his learned junior, he informed the Court that he did not think he was able to establish collusion but he was not in a position to consent to anything and he was desirous that the plaintiff should give his evidence on that question so that his clients might not be prejudiced hereafter.

Evidence was then led and Mr. Tricumdass identified the signatures of his father Dawrkadass and of Purshotam Jeevandass on the receipts. The signatures were in the name of the firm of Jeevandass and Company.

The case is proceeding.

POLICE COURTS.

COCAINE PROSECUTIONS.

More Stringent Rule.

On Saturday afternoon before Mr. A. H. S. Aston Chief Presidency Magistrate, at the Esplanade Police Court, Inspector Lewis charged eighteen persons, Hindus and Mahomedans, with having in their possession cocaine weighing half a grain to three grains without a license from the Collector.

The Police Inspector told the Magistrate that until recently the law permitted a person to keep six grains of cocaine without a license, but in the last "Government Gazette" it was notified by a Government Resolution that no person could keep more than a tenth part of a grain of cocaine without a license from the authorities. The Magistrate having seen the Government resolution convicted and fined the accused, The amount of fine ranging from 8 annas to Rs. 2.

ALLEGED POSTAL FORGERY.

THE case, in which Mr. F. H. Vincent, Deputy Commissioner of Police C.I.D., charged Sadasaive, Manadev Rangede, Anant Bhugwant Dastane, Janardhan Nuroby Thatte and K. D. Satine, with forgery and abetment in respect of four postal money orders of the aggregate value of Rs. 2,000, came on for further hearing at Mazagaon, before Mr. P. H. Dastur.

The facts of the case have already been reported.

His Worship held a prima facie case proved and committed all the accused to take their trial at the next Criminal Sessions of the High Court.

PROPOSED SEWAGE OUTFALL.

Engineers Differ.

THE Committee appointed by the Bombay Corporation to report on the Municipal Commissioner's letter of 26th August last, regarding the tender of Messrs. Lowther; Kidd & Co., for the construction of a deep sea outfall at Love Grove have now submitted their report, in which is stated:—

They have very carefully considered the question whether a deep sea outfall at Love Grove is absolutely necessary or whether any other alternative is possible. The question has now been brought forward in connection with the results of the preliminary survey undertaken for the construction of a new low level pumping outfall, in connection with the new machinery at Love Grove, for the delivery of sewage below low water level. The two questions can, no doubt, be separated, as for the purposes of discharging into the sea the sullage pumped by the new installation an additional outfall barrel might suffice. But the nuisance caused by the present outfall is a very real one, endangering the healthfulness and sanitation of a considerable portion of the Island, and rendering another portion, which is capable of considerable development, unusable and uninhabitable, and it must be remembered that the sewage of the north of the Island will be taken to Love Grove within a short time and that the additional quantity of sewage which will be discharged in consequence will accentuate the nuisance. To deal effectually with this evil it is absolutely necessary to construct a deep sea outfall. That this work might eventually have to be undertaken by the Municipality has been recognised by all officers of the Municipality and the experts consulted by the Corporation and the question is whether the time has not now arrived when it should be taken in hand. The Committee are of opinion that no further delay should be allowed in undertaking and carrying out this important work.

In the Commissioner's letter under reference reasons have been given for treating the question as one of great urgency and for entrusting the work to Messrs. Lowther Kidd & Co. As however the work is of a highly technical character the Committee thought it desirable that the plans and estimates received from the Commissioner be in the first instance referred for opinion and advice to a Committee of Engineers acquainted with local conditions in Bombay, composed of two Engineers from the Port Trust, one from the Improvement Trust and one from Government and Khan Bahadur M.C. Murzban, C.I.E., F.R.I.B.A., M.I.C.E., late Executive Engineer, Bombay Municipality. The Bombay Port Trust were good enough to spare the services of Mr. A. C. W. Fosbery, M. Inst. C.E., and Mr. L. H. Savile, A.M.I.C.E., for the purpose and the services of Mr. B. J. Kent, A.M.I.C.E., and Mr. E. M. Proes, A.M.I.C.E., were kindly made available by the Improvement Trust and Government respectively. Khan Bahadur M. C. Murzban was unable to join the Committee owing to indifferent health.

The Commitsee beg to submit that there is a radical difference of opinion between the Committee of Engineers on the one hand and Messrs. Lowther, Kidd and Co. on the other, concerning the form of the sewer to be constructed and the height of the superstructure of the sewer above high water level. In view of these conflicting opinions which involve a difference of nearly 15 lakhs in the estimate of the work the Committee are of opinion, and the Commissioner agrees with them, that the whole correspondence on the subject should be laid before an expert or a firm of experts experienced in deep sea works. They therefore, recommend that the Commissioner be requested to place himself in communication with Sir Walter Hughes and Mr. Midgley Taylor of Messrs. Midgley Taylor Sons and Santo Crimp with a view to obtaining from them particulars concerning the names of experts or firms of experts capable to give advice in the matter and the fees they will require for offering their advice to the Corporation.

MUNICIPAL WATER-RATE.

THE following motion will be moved at the adjourned Budget Meeting of the Corporation by Dr. Dinsha Bomanji Pestonji Master: "That the Budget Estimate in respect of the revenue for the year 1911-12 from water be adopted at Rs. 20,05,000, the rate for trade purposes being retained at 8 annas per 1,000 gallons. That the Commissioner be requested to submit through the Standing Committee at an early date proposals for improving the filtering arrangements for the City and other necessary works to be carried out during the year 1911-12 towards which the surplus water revenue may be spent in the best interest of the City."

The Commissioner, has addressed the following letter to the Corporation:—"With reference to the proposal contained in the Budget for 1911-12 to reduce the rate for water supply to Trades and Industries from annas 8 to 7 per 1,000 gallons, I have the honour to state that the reduction was proposed with a view to meet the legal requirements of balancing as far as possible the receipts and expenditure on account of water, and because it seemed that it was the fairest and simplest reduction that could be made in view of the amount involved. In view of the discussion that has taken place, however, I now write to inform the Corporation that the excess of about Rs. 50,000 of receipts over expenditure can, as reported by the Water Engineer, be expended usefully on miscellaneous mior works connected with the water supply. One of these is the provision of a Motor Boat for cutting the weeds in the Vehar and Tulsi Lakes. Weeds and grass have increased and, in the former lake, attained to alarming proportions and their extent cannot fail to be a danger to the purity of the water. It had proved impossible to restrict their growth by means of manual labour and it is proposed to attach shears to the Motor Boat which will clear the lakes rapidly and effectively. The cost of such a boat will be something under Rs. 7,000. Another need is the clearance of jungle all along the water mains laid from the lakes to Bombay. This jungle at present is unattended to and its growth is liable to affect the stability of the foundations of the pipes. Expenditure is also required on the filter beds at Vehar and also on those at the reservoir at Malabar Hill."

SPORTING NEWS.

BOMBAY RACES.

Seventh Extra Meeting.

THE number of spectators who went to the Mahalaxmi Racecourse, Bombay, to attend the Seventh Extra Meeting, on Saturday last, was an average one, but during the afternoon the ring was kept busy by the backers. A breeze blew from the sea, which helped to keep the exceptional coldness of the weather on Saturday morning in mind, and more than one person present donned an overcoat before the long programme of the afternoon had been finished. Two outstanding events of the afternoon were the win of that splendid pony, Abdul Malik, and the fact that Precious did not run into a place. Of the first one can only say that it is to be hoped that Abdul Malik will not succumb to the strain of a heavy season and as regards the second—although it has become proverbial that Precious must win his race—it was obvious that Mr. R.R.S's Arab was stiff and out of form when Brown gave him a short preliminary gallop to the gate. Many ladies attended the races and seemed to take as much interest in the decision of the events as do the men. The band of the G. I. P. Railway Volunteers played in the intervals between the races. After the last race, owing to some mishap to the official ball, paying out was delayed until twilight when Mr. Cecil Gray personally announced to the bookmakers that the original decision was correct. During the afternoon, Whalley, fresh from Calcutta, rode four winners. In the first division of the Maiden Plate, Brazee was installed as favourite with Ready, Engineer and Once More backed for places. Snaif-el-Malook won with a comfortable margin, the favourite only getting third place. In the All Pony Plate, Evening Herald and Comeback were first fancied. Then came a run on Leo Grand which brought his price down to 6 to 4. In the race, Evening Herald had no difficulty in winning, Comeback just beating the favourite for second place. The Dadur Plate afforded much speculation. Majesty and Abdul Malik were both popularly supported, some money going on Winchester and even Siriska. In the race, Abdul Malik showed what a great pony he is and won by one and a half lengths. Hilarity was perhaps the favourite of the Epsom Plate, although later in the betting Master Delaval was brought down in price. Mr. Goculdass' Mount won a close race from Eva, which mare was not backed to any extent by the punters. When Precious is entered for a race, it is customary to find the books open at 'odds on' about him. However, the price, which might have been longer, was justified as Precious was not in form and public support lay between Sir Hugo and Zainulmulook. In the race Zainulmulook won easily, Whalley riding a well-judged race. Chivalry has more than once disappointed the public as an 'odds on' favourite. He did so on Saturday, and the winner of the Selling Plate was T. M. S., although Signorina was fancied by many. In the second part of the Dadur Plate, Tezhreet, Tofic Pasha, Lookman and Ashroff were all backed to win, but Tofic Pasha was the favourite, although Lookman was always feared. In the race this fear proved true, for Whalley guided Lookman to victory in spite of Tofic Pashas's attempt. In the last race of the day—the second divisions of the New Maiden Plate.—Lord Magdala was expected by the public to win. However, Roy-el-Mulook, backed down to six to four, ran a great race and in the straight, although challenged by Lord Magdala, won decisively.

ALL-INDIA HOCKEY TOURNAMENT.

N.-W. Ry. Volunteers Win the Final.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

ALLAHABAD, JAN. 28.

The final in the All-India Hockey Tournament was played off this evening in the presence of a very large number of spectators. The opposing teams were the 4th Worcestershire Regt., from Bareilly and the N.-W. Ry. Volunteers from Lahore. The Volunteers played a splendid game, their dribbling and passing being excellent, and had it not been for the strong defence of the military, they would have added to their score. During the first half, the Volunteers, by clever passing, rushed the ball within a few feet of their opponents' goal and succeeded in putting it through, the Worcesters' goal-keeper falling in his attempt to save.

In the second half, the Volunteers made repeated attempts to score and added two more for them The Worcester goal-keeper saved splendidly on a number of occasions. The game resulted in a win for the Volunteers by three goals to love.

BY THE WAY.

THE BIBLE AND ART.

As long as an artist confines himself to technical subjects, he has a right to respectful attention and freedom from rude interruptions when he speaks. But when he proceeds to discuss the general purposes of art, he must be prepared to contend with the theories and opinions of the great, unpractised body of art-lovers. Sir W. B. Richmond has expressed his belief that artists would do well to rely more often on the resources of literature, and of the Bible in particular, for their inspiration. We cannot help thinking that painting has a higher destiny than to act as an habitual appendage to litterature. Artists who have been exclusively attracted by legendary and Biblical stories have almost invariably adopted the style of the very early masters or originated a convention of their own. Even the Pre-Raphaelites, who broke through the conventiods of their day with their unconventional works, soon showed that they themselves were working within certain very definite conventions, as narrow as, but differing from, those they transgressed. The founders of that movement studied nature, and produced some great pictures. Their followers studied them. If painters once begin to endeavour to produce the atmospheres of antiquity, non-natural conventions will arise. The Post-Impressionists, on whom Sir W. Richmond looks with pious contempt, have a higher belief in themselves than to act as glorified illustrators, though they, too, work within the narrowest of conventions.

TCHAIKOVSKY AND THE BEANSTALK.

Mr. J. M. Glover, who has for many years directed the music at Drury Lane pantomimes, has this year drawn upon himself a storm of abuse. He has introduced certain Tchaikovsky melodies into his musical score. Such a thing has often been done before but never on so big a scale for in the present pantomime Tchaikovsky is heard, we believe, some thirty times. Everybody will admit that it is impossible for a lover of music not to feel something of a shock at hearing these themes amid such surroundings. He cannot help feeling it, any more than he could help feeling something of a shock if Mr. Graves were suddenly to declaim John of Gaunt's speech from Richard II. or any other famous passage likely to appeal to the patriotic public. At the same time Mr. Glover's argument that good music, in any setting, is educational has a certain weight, and when he proceeds to protest, in a letter to the "Times," that "high-class musicians take themselves much too seriously" he is stating an irrefutable truth. Mr. Glover, however, has perhaps fallen into the common error of underestimating the public when he says that numbers of his audience have never heard of the Queen's Hall. He would probably find upon enquiry that a large number of the patrons of Drury Lane are patrons of the Queen's Hall too, and that them the repetitions of the Tchaikovsky themes are somewhat too frequent.

SAVE IN HIS OWN COUNTRY.

Commander Peary has succeeded in convincing the Committee of the House of Representatives of the genuineness of his claim to have discovered the North Pole. The Committee were in some danger of finding themselves in the position of the two old farmers in Sir W. S. Gilbert's poem, who went to complain to the scholarly aristocrat, In other words, that the Committee been composed of snobs, Commander Peary could have drowned them in a flood of technicalities. What actually happened was both a tribute to the honesty of the parties concerned and an exposure of the absurdity of settling a lay committee to decide on expert matters. The Commander early acknowledged that it was quite possible for all his evidence to be faked. The Committee returned the compliment by declaring that the explorer's data was incomprehensible to them. As a result of the meeting the committee declared themselves satisfied, and the Commander will be raised to the rank of Rear-Admiral.

THE ENGLISHMAN IN FRANCE.

Gone from the boards of the French stage is the immemorial Englishman with whiskers, protruding teeth, and a check suit. And it is MM. Francois de Croisset and Henri Bataille that have killed him. For the account of the new plays of these dramatists we are indebted to the "Telegraph," and though the new Englishman is still not identical with the real Englishman, he is a great improvement on the old Englishman. According to M. Bataille, he first fascinates the French heroine by wearing a blazer in the hotel reading-room—"If you knew how my heart beats when I see his ridiculous little blue jacket with the white braid!" They enter upon a game of cards, the leans accross and whispers emphatically, "I love you, twice. He is astounded (what hypocrites these other English are!) He says "Pray, pray, coming etc." (especially "etc," we imagine), and leaves the room, enimatic and masterful. M. de Croisset's hero is far more natural. At his first encounter with the heroine, he rushes to her and kisses her on spirito. However, he doesent marry her after all. What hypocrites are these English! One wishes one knew these splendid types over fellow country men.

POETRY OF THE EMPIRE.

One is glad to hear of a recital of Australian poetry, for the simple reason that nothing gives the stay-at-home Englishman a better idea of the spirit of the Overseas States, their outlook on life, their views on the Imperial connection, than the lyrical effusions of their sons. Often these poets are disciples of Mr. Kipling, who with his wonderful sympathy, his power of transporting himself into the thoughts and feelings of others has given such accurate expression to what is uppermost and at the same time deepest in the minds of our kinsmen. His "L'Envoi" is one of the most popular poems under the Southern Cross. Who has given so clearly, and in so few lines the atmosphere of the different dominions—of South Africa, "the land of the flood and the thunder, and it, pals dry healing blue," of Canada with its "plough in the league long furrow," and "the neighbour's farm in the offing."

SIDNEYS-TREETSIEGE AND KELLY GANG.

The amazing siege in the East End resembles in some respects the destruction of the Kelly gang of outlaws in Australia, thirty years ago. After a long career of brigandage and bank-robbing during which they shot dead three policemen and one civilian. Ned Kelly and his gang were eventually cornered in the little village of Glenrowan. They threw themselves into the village inn, barricading and fortifying it to the best of their ability. Isolated and surrounded by the police who were reinforced by soldiers hurried up by train from Melbourne the outlaws held the place far most of a day. At length the inn was found to be on fire. All the gang with the exception of their leader, perished.

ANOTHER CASE.

In the old churchyard in Newington-butts is the tomb of William Allen, whose death is recalled by the unusual event of the employment of soldiers on active service in the streets of London. Wilkes was a prisoner in the King's Bench Prison, and a meeting of protest against his imprisonment was held St. George's Fields, Southwark, and an attempt to liberate him was made. To quell the disturbance the military were called out and the people were fired upon several being wounded, and one, Allen, was killed. His death aroused public indignation, and at the inquest a verdict of "Wilful murder" was returned against the soldier who fired the shot but he could not be identified. The elaborate monument erected over his grave and setting forth the circumstances of his death is still to be seen.

NEW STAR IN THE MILKY WAY.

In the very little known constellation of Lacerta, which occupies a place in the Milky Way west of Cassiopeia a clerical amateur astronomer has just found a new star of the eighth magnitude, and hopes are expressed that the stranger may presently rival the great star which in 1901 blazed out in the neighbouring constellation of Perseus, and for a time dominated the northern night sky. The Lacerta nova however, is as yet only to be seen in a telescope; but observers who rely on their ordinary eyesight should keep a lookout in the region of the Milky Way near Cassiopeia, Cygnus, and Cepheus for the possible brightening up of the new body. At present Lacerta is north-west after sunset and almost due north just after midnight.

THE LADIES' CORNER.

FASHION AND ART.

The dress of the civilised woman should be beautiful, convenient, and hygienic. Within our memory writes Barry Pain in the "Westminster Gazette" her dress has varied it many ways, but it has always remained the same in three respects—it has always been ugly inconvenient, always insanitary. The only things that fashion cannot change are the things that need to be altered. Progress moves with greater or less velocity—generally less—towards a mark: fashion moves like a mad blue-bottle towards nothing. The one direct product of fashion is weariness. We are weary of hearing men, women, and things described as "the limit," even as aforetimes we grew weary of hearing them described as "chronic." We are weary of dogs that are not so much dogs as animated china ornaments. We are weary of popular songs that all evidence the same type of mental disorder. We are weary of translated plays from which on the ground of decency, either the motive or the action has to be omitted. Even if fashion, by some fluke, gives us a good thing, it always gives us too much of it. There was a time when in consequence of this a really clever epigram produced almost a feeling of nausea.

INDIRECT RESULTS OF FASHION.

The indirect results of fashion are countless. It sent up rents in Harley-street and Park-lane; it sent them down in Bloomsbury. It caused the slaughter of thousands of birds in the breeding season to satisfy the vanity of tender hearted woman. It has forced authors into over-production, and rewarded them with starvation. It has transformed manner into mannerism and orchestras into boiler-factories. It is to-day obscuring with its shifting and unsubstantial clouds the fine performance of art. "We have moved on a good deal since Wagner," said a musician; and so, to speak metaphorically, the hair of his head was not worthy to serve as Wagner's doormat, the complacence of the 'we' was amusing. Does anybody think about Ibsen nowadays?" asked a young lady at the dinner-table. One had a vision of Ibsen with all his glory trudging patiently out into the unknown . . . and bacoming to Maeterlinck and George Bernard Shaw to follow him. It is strange that the real creator can become unfashionable, but it is still stranger that the parvenu can become fashionable. Yet, it is confidently asserted that more money was taken at the Grafton Gallery by the Post-Impressionist show than could have been received by an exhibition of, say, paintings.

ART NOT CONCERNED.

Of course Art is not concerned. The Miasmatic clouds drift by, but the pillars of the temple remain standing; since fashion is ephemeral, and Art is of all time. Those who have heard the footsteps overhead in "John Gabriel Borkman," who have seen Rosmer and Rebecca go forth to their death, who have watched the flight of Nora from the doll's house, or the last agony of Hedda Gabler, will have no fear for Ibsen because the young lady looks upon him as upon last year's hat. They may even feel a melancholy satisfaction that he has escaped the pollution of her approval. But they may reasonably feel rather nervous about the young lady. How did she come to be like that? Her name is legion; she is a common object of the drawing-room. She has learned to say things. Some time ago she learned to say that she admired the beauty of Heardderys line. She learned to say Sargeant was frightfully slick. She is now learning to say (at the Grafton Gallery) that one may paint the sensation of a tree. In reality she has no opinions, because she has no knowledge on which to base opinions. If you proposed to her that she should go to the Academy without a catalogue and without instruction from the critics, she would probably burst into tears and confess. If she would tell us what she really liked it would be very interesting, and might even be very useful; but she has not the courage to do that. It is very doubtful if she has the honesty to admit to herself what she really likes. So far as Art is concerned she uses her brain, not for thought, but as a kind of tank for shop-soiled shibboleths. Just as fashion insist that we shall appear to be richer than we are, so also it insists that we shall appear to be more intelligent than we are; and of the two vulgarities the latter is perhaps the more deadly.

SCIENTIFIC NOTES

UNEXPLORED LANDS.

"It is a mistake" says the "Scientific American," "to assume that most of the earth's surface has been explored." In many parts of the world, it points out, there are still fresh fields for the explorer. There is, for example, still something new to be expected out of Africa. In the Sahara the highlands of Tibesti and Ahaggar need exploring, and the district of Wadai has been visited by very few. Again the region between Lake Rudolf and Abyssinia and the valley of Sobat, a tributary of the White Nile, is almost unknown.

UNKNOWN ASIA.

There is also an unknown Asia. An area of more than 400 miles square awaits the explorer in Arabia. There is also much to be investigated in Asia Minor. Persia, again, offers unexplored regions in Turkestan and the country of the Persian Kurd. There are passes from Thibet into Nepal awaiting the traveller and much unknown land in south-western Thibet The great mountain and river systems between India and China invite the geographical explorer. That great mass of islands lying to the south of Asia, and including little-known New Guinea, offers a great field of investigation, and doubtless contains many surprises. Turning to the New World, we find that there are still vast unknown tracts in Canada. The most extensive unexplored regions, however, are said to exist in South America.

THIBET THE MYSTERIOUS.

In his wonderful Trans-Himalayan journeys Sven Hedin has done much to wipe off the reproach of "Unexplored" written so large across the maps of Thibet, but he has not exhausted that land of mystery. There is still much work for the traveller in those elevated regions of the earth. As the great Swedish traveller himself says:—"I have been able to follow and lay down only the chief geographical lines; between my routes many blank spaces are still left, and there is sufficient detailed work for generations of explorers and travellers more thoroughly prepared and better equipped than myself."

FISH WHICH EAT OYSTERS.

As a result of recent investigations, Mr. T. Southwell finds that the fishes most destructive to pearl-oysters are those commonly known as globe-fish. Another fish belonging to the group known as Pagrina is seldom or never found without oysters in its stomach. The larger species of rays and sharks are suspected of committing great ravages in the oyster beds, but hitherto Mr. Southwell has not been able to convict them by finding oysters inside them.

ANT-LOVING CATERPILLARS.

In the Philippine "Journal of Science" Mr. H. Viehmeyer discusses the question of certain so-called "ant-loving" (Myrmecophilous) caterpillars. These are found in the nests of different species of ants, and are furnished with secreting pores which furnish a liquid appreciated by their hosts. When the hanging nest of a certain species of ant was broken up it was found to contain chrysalids. The ants were furious, and grouped themselves round these as if to defend them. The general relation seems to be that the caterpillars are defended by the ants, which in turn supply their defenders with a delectable secretion.

BARNACLES ON SNAKE'S TAIL.

An interesting marine specimen was brought to the museum at Colombo on July 23, 1909. It was a sea-snake, which bore on the end of its tail a thick bunch of two species of barnacles. One of these two species of barnacle, it is noted, is frequently accompanied by two species of worm. The same animals may be found attached to the heads of whales. A humpback whale examined by Aurivillius was found to have no less than fifty of them on each side of its head. While attached to these, sometimes as many as ten on each shell, waved another long soft species.

PARASITIC ALGA.

Many cases are known of a species of alga living with an animal in that friendly partnership known as symbiosis. The colour of the green fresh-water hydra, for example is due to the growth within it of a green alga. And there is a species of Amœba which is green for a similar reason. But the species of alga found by Messrs. Mortensen and Rosenvinge on a species of Ophioglypha is the first to be recorded as parasitic and disease producing. The fact that in one case the alga may be harmless, and even of advantage, while in another case it is disease producing, is analogous to the existence of non pathogenic and pathogenic bacteria.

GROWTH OF A LICHEN.

Hans Fitting describes in a botanical periodical the interesting course of development of a species of lichen. This is found growing parasitically on the leaves of tropical evergreens in Java. First of all there grows on the leaf a parasitic alga. It penetrates the cuticle and enters the tissues of the leaf, the affected cells of the latter turning brown. Then among the algal cells there grows a species of fungus and the plant becomes a lichen. Usually the alga and fungus which form the compound plant known as the lichen are associated from the spore stage.

SLIME ON SPONGE.

The familiar slime which forms on the household sponge has been usually attributed to an accumulation of soap, &c. Recent examination by Mr. R. Greig-Smith, who records his results in the Proceedings of the Linnean Society of New South Wales, suggests that it may be bacterial in origin. Cultivation yielded a great variety of organisms, among which were two species of slime-bacteria, which were further investigated. When grown on certain media they produced abundant slimes.

IMMUNITY FROM SNAKE BITES.

The curious fact that certain animals are immune from snake bites in further illustrated by the case of the lerot, of which M. G. Billard contributes an account to the "Comptes Rendus" of the Biological Society of Paris. Two of these animals were bitten several times by large adders, but, apart from local inflammation and loss of hair round the bite, they suffered no harm. M. Billard also cites the case of a young badger which was bitten by two very large adders, and yet showed no ill-effects.

A SENSIBLE SUGGESTION.

The lot of our miners is not one which, even at its best, can be enviable. Of the dangers to which they are exposed some are of external origin, and some are inherent in the nature of their calling. The Cornish miner may bring back from abroad to his old workings the ankylostomum. Before long the mine is visited by a form of anæmia affecting perhaps hundreds of his comrades. There are perils, too, the cause of which is at present obscure. What is known as Miner's Nystagmus is a diseased condition of the sight, in which the eyeballs show constant small, jerky movements. The co-ordination of the ocular muscles breaks down, and accommodation fails. According to Dr. Elworthy, Inspector of Injured Workmen to the Ebbw Vale Colliery "British Medical Journal," November 19), the average age at which the disease makes its appearance is between thirty-five and thirty-six—i.e., after men have been working in the pit for some twenty years. The younger the man the sooner he gets well. The man who remains at work, struggling for months against the disease, may have to remain idle even a year and a half before complete recovery is reached. A colliery may have as many as 100 men down with nystagmus. It loses in that case quite £100 a week in compensation, and that is in addition to the loss from the men not being at work. The men lose about £200 a week, so that it is to the interest of both parties that a remedy be found. What, then, is the cause of this complaint? It does not occur in other mines. There is no record of a case in either the Cornish tin-mines or in the lead-mines of the Isle of Man. Dr. Elworthy has come to the conclusion that the mischief can be traced to the fatigue of the eye due to the conditions under which the miner works. Everything is black, or nearly black, and there is no relief to the eternal monotony. All the long winter through he goes down to his work when there is but little daylight, and when he comes up he is greeted by the twilight. For the great part of the year he gets practically no colour relief. One way of meeting the daylight difficulty would be a change in the hours of work. Eight hours from four in the morning to noon would bring the miner home to dinner at one, and give him five and a half hours for recreation, with bed at half past six. The daily colour-washing of the roof and other parts of the mine would be expensive, but it would cost men and masters less than they lose by the presence of nystagmus; for the ostlers who work in white-washed underground stables are free from the disease.

WORLD-FAMED GUTTÆ VITÆ
Or, LIFE DROPS.

The Great European Remedy for Nervous and Functional Exhaustion.

This extraordinary rejuvenating essence strengthens the vitality of the whole system, gives energy to the muscles, and specially restores the impaired powers of life, imparting strength and manly vigour to the most debilitated and worn out constitution. Those who suffer from Premature Decay, or deficiency or the Vital Forces, owing to dissipation, worry, overwork, excesses, or any other cause, will find this medicine just what they require. Equally adapted for the studious and sedentary; the aged and infirm; the nervous and debilitated; as also for delicate females and weakly children. All sufferers from loss of appetite, nervous headache, lassitude, and despondency—too often accompanied with suicidal thoughts—should make immediate and fair unprejudiced trial of this wonderful medicine, which is daily effecting the most remarkable cures in patients who had been given up by the Faculty as incurable, and left to drag out the remainder of their existence a misery to themselves, and a continual anxiety to their friends. In all cases of nervous and functional debility, epilepsy, impurity and poorness of the blood, aversion to and incapacity for society, study, or business, giddiness, disturbed sleep, harassing dreams, loss of memory, and other symptoms, the result of self-acquired ailments that embitter and shorten life, it is truly unrivalled. To married persons especially, this preparation will prove invaluable, giving strength and vigour in place of lassitude and incompetency. Price 11s. or four times that quantity, 33s. Bottle.

Dr. DE JONGH'S
KNIGHT OF THE ORDER OF LEOPOLD OF BELGIUM

LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL

THE PUREST. THE MOST PALATABLE. THE MOST DIGESTIBLE. THE MOST EFFICACIOUS.

Incontestably proved by Forty Years' Medical Experience to be The only Cod Liver Oil which produces the full curative effects in

SELECT MEDICAL OPINIONS.

DR. PROSSER JAMES,
Lecturer on Materia Medica, London Hospital.
"Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL contains the whole of the active ingredients of the remedy, and is easily digested. Hence its value, not only in Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, but in a great number of cases to which the Profession is extending its use."

DR. SAUNDERS, C.B.,
Late Deputy-Inspector-General Army Hospitals, Superintendent London Medical Mission.
"I have used Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL extensively among the sick poor of St. Giles', and consider it a valuable remedy, especially in the Wasting Diseases of Children."

DR. HUNTER SEMPLE,
Physician to the Hospital for Diseases of the Throat and Chest, London.
"I have long been aware of the great reputation enjoyed by the LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL introduced into medical practice by Dr. DE JONGH, and have recommended it with the utmost confidence. I have no hesitation in stating my opinion, that it possesses all the qualities of a good and efficient medicine. Its taste is by no means disagreeable, and might even be called pleasant. I have found Dr. DE JONGH'S OIL very useful in cases of Chronic Cough, and especially in Laryngeal Disease complicated with Consumption."

DR. WHITMORE,
Medical Officer of Health, St. Marylebone, London.
"My own somewhat lengthened experience as a Medical Practitioner enables me with confidence to recommend Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT BROWN COD LIVER OIL as being more uniform in quality, more certain in its effects, more palatable, and infinitely less likely to disagree with the stomach than the Pale Oil. If I were asked for an explanation of the marked success which for so many years has attended the administration of Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL, I should say that it is owing to its extraordinary medicinal, dietetic, and regimical properties, and which are found to exist in no other medicine that I am acquainted with, in such uniform combination."
